Course Overview

This course is intended to provide an introduction to basic theory and research regarding attitudes. The focus will be on how attitudes form, how they are represented in memory, the functional value that they serve and the consequences that they have for information processing, judgment, and behavior.

Course Textbook

New York: Psychology Press.

This book is a collection of classic and contemporary journal articles from the social psychological literature on attitudes. Because the book is not yet in print, all the readings have been made available on the Carmen website, http://carmen.osu.edu.

Course Requirements

Readings are assigned for each class meeting, and are to be read prior to the class with which they are associated. Each day’s readings consist of 1-2 articles from the Fazio & Petty reader.

Grades will be based on three exams:

1. Exam #1 covering the first 3 weeks of the syllabus will be administered during class on April 17. It will be weighted 30% of the course grade.
2. Exam #2 covering the next third of the course will be administered during class on May 10. It too will be weighted 30%.
3. Exam #3 will be administered during finals week. Although the focus will be on the final third of the course, students will be expected to integrate these topics with the material that was covered earlier. This final exam will be weighted 40%.

Academic Misconduct

All students at the Ohio State University are bound by the Code of Student Conduct (see http://oaa.ohio-state.edu/coam/code.html). Suspected violations of the code in this class will be dealt with according to the procedures detailed in that code. Specifically, any alleged cases of misconduct will be referred to the Committee on Academic Misconduct.
Students with disabilities

This syllabus is available in alternative formats upon request. In addition, if you may need an accommodation based on the impact of a disability, you should contact the instructor immediately. Students with special needs should contact the Office of Disability Services (ODS) at 292-3307 for certification if they have not already done so. Upon such certification, the ODS and the instructor will make every effort to accommodate special needs. However, to ensure that evaluation of student performance in the course is conducted in a manner that is fair to all students, special accommodations will not be granted in the absence of ODS certification.
